SFX: opening theme

INTERVIEWER : Today we have a member of the Caveman Circus Caravan, Tar Rockaway is one of the animal trainers. Which animals do you train?

TRAINER : Well, you see, when I started nobody could keep the woolly mammoths in a straight line. But I solved that problem right away.

INTERVIEWER : How so?

TRAINER : Big giant pits on each side of the runway. They had to stay on the runway or fall in. And mammoths don't like taking spills, you know.

INTERVIEWER : Digging those pits must have taken quite a long time.

TRAINER : Yep, it did. Especially since we had to use our hands at first. About half-way through some guy from another cave brought us this long stick with a paddle tied onto the end. He called it a 'shovel' and said it would make the digging easier.

INTERVIEWER : And did it?

TRAINER : Yep. Except for the delays from the workers getting hit in the head. Half the men would start swinging and then whack the other half in the head.

INTERVIEWER : OW! That would slow things up a bit. What was your next task?

TRAINER : Well, I wanted very much to train the sabertooth tigers, but you have to keep their fangs polished. Not that I'm afraid they'd bite me. It's just that they drool so much and it gets all over you and you can't get it off.

INTERVIEWER : I see. So what did you train?

TRAINER : My younger brother.

INTERVIEWER : I beg your pardon?

TRAINER : Well, he's quite simian looking. If he kept his mouth shut all the time you'd swear he was a monkey -

SFX: monkey noises

TRAINER : - so we have this act, you see. He mainly spins on his head while I pelt him with little rocks -

SFX: monkey screams

TRAINER : - the kids love it.

INTERVIEWER : Oh yeah! I've seen that act! It's great! Lots of action! I never would have known he was your brother.

TRAINER : Half-brother.

SFX: closing theme

INTERVIEWER : Yes, yes. Well, thank you for your time. This is Grok Boulder for the CCC - Continuous Caveman Coverage.
